

5 ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

10 A system for enabling the performance of electronic commerce transactions includes a central controller for integrating together a plurality of legacy systems allowing an exchange of data relating to electronic commerce transaction between the central controller and each of the legacy systems. A plurality of application programming interfaces associated with the central controller enables communications between the central controller using a first communications protocol and each of the plurality of legacy systems using a different 15 communications protocol.